Often the most successful designs are ones that the designer created for themselves because they couldn't find what they needed in the marketplace; this is the story behind Sorrento Stripe. Patrick needed stripes that work with his rich, layered colour scheme – that he could rely on for every kind of project and in every sort of room. So, he created Sorrento Stripe - first and foremost for himself, but with the assumption that many others have been seeking Sorrento too.

Woven of 100 percent linen with sateen-weave bands for contrast and a little sheen, the eleven colourways encompass the whole palette of the Italian landscape, ranging from the verdant greens of Toscana, the warm neutrals of Prato (meadow in Italian) to the opulent reds of Campari.
